HOME ECONOMICS AND MANUAL ARTS OPEN HOUSE

The annual Home Economics Open House was held on May 21. Upstairs in the Home Ec. Cottage was a display of clothing of all shapes, sizes and colors, made by the girls in the Home Ec. Department. They ranged from glamorous evening dresses, wool sheaths and suits, to the popular A-line shifts. Downstairs, visitors were greeted by the friendly smiles of the girls in the Home Economics Department as they filed through the reception line and passed the table covered with cookies, cakes, and punch glasses trimmed with colored sugar.

The Manual Arts Exhibit was also held on May 21, in the Manual Arts Shop. There the patience and skill of the boys taking shop was displayed in full force. Among the many excellent pieces were coffee tables, cabinets, lamps and bookracks. Cedar chests made by Donald Baker and Carl Coolidge, and a chest of drawers made by Billy Keoskie were a few of the highly-praised pieces. As the visitors, students and faculty wandered leisurely through the shop, they were entertained

BACCALAUREATE

On Sunday, June 7, 1964, at 10:00 a. m. the class of 1964 will file into the West Parish Congregational Church for the Baccalaureate Exercises. It will be the next to the last time this class will all be assembled together. What will their thoughts be as they listen to the baccalaureate sermon by the Reverend William M. Thompson. All of them will sometime realize that will need a strong foundation of faith upon which to build their lives, but at this point it is difficult for them to know whether they have this foundation. In these confused times they are all seeking some direction and meaning to their lives. The immediate effects of baccalaureate will probably not be astounding, but sometime in the future they may look back and realize that it was a valuable starting point.

The program is as follows:
Organ Prelude, Mr. E. Ward Steady, Berlin, N. H.
Processional
Invocation, The Reverend Clifford W. Laws, Minister, West Parish Congregational Church, Bethel
Hymn, "Lead On, O King Eternal"
Scripture Reading, Romans 12:1-21, The Reverend Donald F. Hess, Minister, Methodist Church, Bethel
Anthem, "The Lord is my Shepherd," The Choir
Prayer, The Reverend Donald Hess
Gould Hymn
Sermon, The Quest for Identity, The Reverend William M. Thompson, Minister, Congregational - Christian Conference of Maine
Hymn, "O God Our Help in Ages Past"
Benediction, The Reverend Clifford Laws.

SUMMERTIME, U. S. A.

A sun-bronzed young man, his bare foot resting impatiently on the accelerator of a scuffed-up Grand Prix, drives a convertible full of teenagers through the late afternoon sun of a popular, New England summer resort. Far across the oceans it is nearly morning. Ominous August rain clouds are thoroughly drenching a troubled Viet-Nam Republic. Viet-Cong guerrillas, returning from a pre-dawn ambush, are now disbanding to resume their role as loyal farmers.

The same Vietnamese leaders who exultantly proclaimed their liberation from the French are wondering if freedom has really been found. Proud country peasants, whose lives have been haunted by uncertainty, are now confronted with political philosophies and find themselves baffled. Two determined young men are distributing contradictory information pamphlets to illiterate mountain tribesmen. Both make great promises; both are Vietnamese.

Last night's newspaper, which tries to tell Viet-Nam's story, is spread out on the seats of the Grand Prix to keep wet bathing suits off the leather upholstery. A radio news program, telling of three American advisors killed in Viet-Nam, has been turned off in favor of a popular rock and roll song which blares this admonition to its youthful, American listeners, "Let's think about love, let's think about living."

SYLVIA SMITH

Ever ready, with a cheerful smile, Sylvia Smith has played a major role in the class of 1964. I'm sure you all must know her, for she is the girl behind the "school store" door. She has had this job for three years, and for the two years I've been here, that same smile has always been there.

She also is a co-editor of the Blue and Gold along with Dick Jacobs. During her years here at Gould, she has been active in many different things. Her junior year, she was a Student Activity Council Representative, a member of the Academy Herald staff, on the Girls' Athletic Council, and is on this year's cap and gown committee. She also has been active in the Glee Club, Chapman Club and Christmas Vespers, and this year she was a member of the chorus that sang in Brigadoon.

Next fall, she will enter Wheelock College, in Boston, Mass., as a "frosh." At Wheelock, she will study pre-school teaching, and upon graduation, hopes to teach a kindergarten class. She loves to work around children, so I imagine she will be a big success in that profession. This summer, she is working as a counsellor at a children's camp in upper New York State.

Good luck to you Sylvia, you should lead an interesting life.

DICK JACOBS

A most dependable guy around campus, ever willing to pitch in when the going's rough. Dick Jacobs, one of the co-editors of this year's Blue & Gold staff, has "piled up" a most remarkable record during his four years at Gould. A member of the National Honor Society, he ranks fifth in his class; Alleghany College, in Meadville, Penn., has claimed him for the next four years.

Canoeing, reading, mountain climbing, and sketching have all combined together, to make up Dick's diversified character. As stage manager of Brigadoon, Dick showed much experience in leadership. Seeming to be a so-called born leader, Dick has been the Senior Class representative in the school's Student Activity Council; is the President of the Pilgrim Fellowship at the Congregational Church; and has been playing the Sousaphone in the school's big band.

An all around guy, dependable, and ever-ready to serve, this is the Dick Jacobs we all know. Good luck in all you may do.

SENIOR GIRLS' TEA

On May 13 at the headmaster's home, Mrs. Vachon was hostess at a tea for the senior girls. Chris Powers greeted the guests while Diane Appleby and Betsy Thompson served. Each was asked to sign the guest book.

Tea, punch, canapes and cookies were enjoyed by all the girls and women faculty members present.

Mrs. Vachon was helped by members of the Home Ec. Department: Joy Moore, Teddy Cummings, Judy Lapham, Sue Bartash and Lou Ann Brown.

G. A. A. BANQUET

On the evening of May 6, 1964, new and old members of the Girls' Athletic Association of Gould Academy flocked to the dining room of Gehring Hall, joined there by faculty members and guests, for a festive and rewarding evening, following a year's hard work. After a delicious meal, Miss Carol Christie, next year's president of the Women's Athletic Association at Colby College, spoke on the college sports' program and athletic association. Accompanying Miss Christie was the director of Women's Physical Education at Colby College, Miss Janet Merchant.

The representatives from each class presented the awards to their classmates, each award based on a point system connected with the intramural sports program.

Laurie Fisher accompanied the group in singing a few favorite songs, followed by the senior girls' will. An engraved bowl and original poem were presented to "Our Coach," Miss Brouillard.

At last came the suspenseful time that everyone had been waiting for—the installation of officers and managers. Everyone slid closer to the edge of her seat, holding her breath as each name was called. With tears of joy, each girl took her place among the council members, old and new. At last, closing with the Gould Alma Mater, the girls began to slowly disperse.

The officers and representatives of next year's Girls' Athletic Association are as follows: president, Jane Look; senior representative, Ethel Kimball; vice president, Chris Sanborn; junior representative, Barbara Douglass; treasurer, Sallie Kinne; secretary, Eileen Saunders; sophomore representative, Vivian Brown.

CINDY FREEMAN

When one thinks of good times, he naturally thinks of Cindy Freeman. In her four years at Gould, Cindy has been active in many sports, including: hockey, volleyball, basketball, tennis, softball, and apparatus, and she has been on the A. A. Council for three years. In the musical field she participates in glee club and band. Cindy likes dramatics and this year has had major parts in the senior one act plays and most recently, "Brigadoon." Believe it or not, in her spare time she sings in the choir of her local church, and also teaches Sunday school. After graduation Cindy plans to attend Burdette College. It's a sure bet that this is one girl to whom everyone wishes the best of luck!

LETTERMEN'S BANQUET

The evening of April 30 found nearly all of Gould's Lettermen and their fathers in Gehring Hall for the annual Letterman's Banquet. The evening got off to a rousing start with fruit cocktail preceding an excellent steak dinner, topped off with pie a la mode, all of which was served by the Girls A. A. Council.

When the plates were cleared, Mr. Henry Hastings, Master of Ceremonies, greeted the group, followed by Mr. Vachon's welcoming address.

Then Mr. Hastings introduced Mr. Quentin R. Unger, Director of Health and Physical Education, Maine State Department of Education, the guest speaker. His informative talk on the importance of an early start in sports was enjoyed by all.

The evening was climaxed by a movie about the Red Sox training and players. Another banquet had come and gone, but to many it was their last and to others just a beginning on their road to athletic success.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY INITIATION

Right after school on Wednesday, May 20, the National Honor Society met in the parking lot beside Bingham Hall and with the arrival of the Owens and Richardsons left with plenty of bug repellent for Mr. Vinton's camp on Kezar Lake. Upon arrival, car doors were flung open (Dick Jacobs climbed out of the back of the Richardson's wagon), and we received a warm welcome from the Vinton's—a mad rush to the water immediately ensued. The boys were brave enough to don their suits, hold their breath, and jump (in that is!). The girls, wary of being pushed in, watched from the other side of the inlet. The NHS turned warriors for a while to work up appetites by padding the war canoe back and forth several times. Speaking of appetites, everybody enthusiastically came back for seconds and thirds—hamburgers, hot dogs and chocolate chip cookies seem to taste so good outside. After supper, everyone went to the lodge where the fire was burning to sit around the fireplace and sing songs or play a rousing game of ping pong—well at least until Mr. Vinton announced it was time for the initiation to begin. Tossing a hard boiled egg back and forth and walking on balloons were only two of Mr. Vinton's imaginative antics before the real test and graduation from Stone Age University. Having been divided into two teams (the team that won was to graduate), we were tested for hunting, cave-domestic, and whistling - after - eating - crackers skills. The climax of the evening came when four of our members sat down to a candle-light dinner of donuts on sticks—the object of the game being to see who could drop the fewest crumbs. But instead of the diploma going automatically to the winning team, fate was left to the flip of a coke-bottle cap; the winning team called cork side up and won anyway...

A. B. (above average) degrees were given to the winners, and for consolation, the losers got F. O. (flunked out) degrees. Consolation?! The last game having been played, all piled into the cars, which made their way back over the narrow, winding roads to Gould.

ALUMNI COLUMN

As the year 1963-1964 closes, I feel that a small explanation of this column is due to the readers. I have tried to present a taste of college life, seen through the eyes of last year's senior class as they fought their way through the first year. Many of the letters that I have written to past seniors seem to have been ignored or discarded. I sincerely hope that the next editor has better luck than I have had.

This column will now be devoted to a past senior of G. A.—John Bartash. While at Gould he was well known in the school's band as well as his class. Here's what he has to say about the University of Rhode Island:

"One of the major points of interest is the fact that two thirds of the school is composed of R. I. residents; this causes the place to have a deep interest in Rhode Island as a state and how it's run (politics).

"The campus has the particular disadvantage of being set off in the wilderness in a town, believe it or not, smaller than Bethel. However, it does have the advantage of a picturesque campus away from the noisy, busy city. Like most new schools it is constantly under construction, new buildings springing up like weeds to take care of the growing enrollment.

"The marching band is the big thing here on campus and is growing fast. We're taking part in N. B. C.'s World's Fair program which was taped this spring in New York City. Next year we've been asked to play during half time at a New York Giants' football game!

"Now that we're having warm weather down here almost the whole campus evacuates on sunny afternoons and especially weekends. With the ocean and beaches only five minutes away, they are so inviting and tend to let books gather dust."

MR. KAILEY REPORTS

Mr. Paul Kailey, instructor of history and ski coach at Gould, recently reported to the student body concerning his very eventful trek to the wilds of Alpine Meadows and Squaw Valley, California. He graphically retold the sequence of events in which he, Jim Corriveau, and Laurel DesRoches were involved as representatives of Gould.

The reason for a trip to California was that inviting contest, the Junior Nationals, held from March 16-22. It pitted seven divisions of amateur skiers against each other, the competitors numbered approximately 235 and assembled from all over the country.

Mr. Kailey, as coach of the Eastern squad, was required

"BURGIE"

Who is the pretty girl from Blue Hill, Maine, graduating this year? It's Sarah Burgess, an active participant in almost all girls' sports here at Gould. Sarah has been on the ski team, has been its manager, and also one of its co-captains. During her junior and senior years, Sarah has been a member of the tennis team. Let's not forget that Sarah is also on the A. A. Council!

Aside from the sports field, Sarah has also been a member of various school organizations, such as the French Club, Glee Club, Outing Club and its executive board. Showing Sarah's service, leadership, scholarship, character, and citizenship, she has been chosen to be a member of the National Honor Society. Sarah was also a candidate for Carnival Queen.

Sports and studies have not kept Sarah from participating in various extra-curricular activities. She was a cheerleader and has recently portrayed the part of Joan Ashton in "Brigadoon."

Sarah will be leaving Gould, but she will be resuming her schooling this fall, at Lake Erie College in Painesville, Ohio.

to choose seven young skiers from a wide field to compete in the Eastern division. They were to meet both in Nordic and Alpine events. In the ensuing races the overall record of the squad was very outstanding. Jim's best score was 11th in the slalom, very respectable indeed, and Laurel, not to be outdone, placed 21st in the giant slalom. However, the overall star of the team was Rebel Ryan who won both the downhill and the giant slalom and placed 2nd in the slalom.

All these facts were duly mentioned in the course of the assembly, but other personal touches were added by Mr. Kailey to "spice up" the works. He told about his transportation problems, the cowboy boots the boys bought, and the daring antics of the group as a whole. He even included the memorable line, "Cheese it, the fuzz," spoken by one boy upon sighting a policeman.

VOCALAIRES

Roy Lockett from Minnesota, Margaret Herald from Mississippi, and Barbara Simms of Chicago, the three Vocalaires, opened their musical program with a lively Spanish tune, "Come Sing This Round With Me," which revealed their coordinated talent. I'm sure that everyone readily recalls their renditions of the old English folk song, "There's a Hole in My Bucket" and "Yellow Bird," a West Indian tune. They also sang "If I Had a Hammer," which expressed their deep interest in freedom for all.

These singers also performed some well-known numbers from "West Side Story," and "Breakfast at Tiffany's," including "One Hand, One Heart," "I Feel Pretty," and "Moon River," for which they received a standing ovation.

LITTLE DRUMMER BOY!

Although he may not be little, Bill McCall is certainly one of the wildest drummers on campus. As a matter of fact, one of the things that Bill enjoys most is drumming up a storm with the help of other members of the "Independents." Bill is what you'd call an outdoor man, enjoying hunting, shooting, trapping, and hiking.

Living in Arrostook County, Bill has found many things to do during the summer. He has previously guided in Northern Maine wilderness areas for the past two summers and cruised timberland for James W. Sewall Co. in Old Town.

Bill has also been busy here at Gould, being on the Executive Council of SAC, writing and being Sports Editor for the Blue and Gold, and being on the Planning Committee for the Herald. Bill is also the vice president of the Outing Club.

For further schooling, Bill will attend Wentworth Institute in Boston to study aeronautical technology. Who knows—Maybe someday Bill will succeed in his ambition to fly to Alaska.

G. A. A. OVERNIGHT

After school on May 22 of the year 1964, the Girls' A. A. Council left for its annual overnight. This year the overnight was held in the White Sands National Park located near North Conway, New Hampshire. Miss Brouillard and Mrs. Davis were the teachers elected by the Council to be our chaperones.

When we arrived at the state park, there was no one there to meet us so we assumed a spot on the beach and went for a swim. Soon it was supper time. As the sun was setting everyone gathered to cook hotdogs and hamburgers over the fire.

After the food had slightly settled in our stomachs the girls decided it was time to hang the May basket on Miss Brouillard. As you know the basket is hung, then it is up to the one on which it was hung to catch the girls. After all were caught, Miss Brouillard opened up her basket and found a giant cigar, which she attempted to smoke, along with bags of candy and gum.

That evening around 11 o'clock, the ranger unexpectedly told us to pack up and leave within fifteen minutes. This slightly shocked us to say the least. Come to find out we were camping on a public beach and not at the camp site. Once moved and settled at our new campsite, we formed a circle and sang songs around a roaring fire—mainly to keep away the bugs.

After 12 o'clock camp seemed to disappear like Brigadoon. Where were all the girls going? I'll never tell! I guest they went for long walks around the campsite. Only those who went will ever really know.

Laughing and singing the girls returned from their walks in groups anywhere from 1 o'clock till 4 o'clock in the morning. I am sure you will all remember such problems as Smokey the ranger, the duck calls, and the bedtime story told to Miss Brouillard. In behalf of all the girls in the Council I wish to thank Miss Brouillard and Mrs. Davis for the wonderful time spent at the unforgettable spot. I know for a fact everyone had a fantastic time. Thanks again to all who made it possible.

GOULD LOSES OPENER

Gould Academy opened its baseball season at Oxford Hills on May 4. Supported by the strong bat of Dennis Wheeler and the fine pitching of Donnie Nowlin, Gould held a 2-0 lead over its foes until the ninth inning. The potential victory did not last for Oxford Hills scored three runs in the last of the ninth to dampen Gould's opener 3-2.

BOOK REVIEW

Many people have always thought of Napoleon Bonaparte as having been a belligerent man, completely void of compassion or other feelings. Thomas B. Costain, however, heartily refutes this all too predominant tone in his latest novel "The Last Love," a warm, glowing story of a great general and a young girl whom he met during his second exile, to a small island called St. Helena far off the African coast.

Upon his arrival on the island, Napoleon found that his intended quarters were not yet ready for occupancy and thus was obliged to impose on the Balcombe family for lodging until his own was made suitable. Betsy, the younger of the two daughters and the second of the four Balcombe children, was quick to make friends with Bonaparte, and they spent the better part of each day together. They became so fond of each other during the two months the emperor was a guest in the Balcombe home that it was inevitable their friendship would not end there, and when the island's English governor refused to allow Napoleon any visitors, they continued to find ways of literally smuggling Betsy into the General's new home.

This book tells of Napoleon and the love he knew during his last days, and it shows in vivid detail the truly humane side of a great soldier.

GIRLS' SPORTS DAYS

May eleventh marked the girls' first sports day for the season between Rumford and Gould. The varsity softball team piled into the bus immediately after school to head for Rumford, but the tennis matches were played on the Gould courts. The tennis team, with Miss Littlefield as its advisor and Bob Amrein and Peter Hubbard as her able assistants, had a shining victory with a score of 12-5, but the softball team was a little less fortunate. Don't think that it didn't put up a mighty impressive struggle, because it did, but the score was 14-11.

With this defeat under its belt, the softball team put in many hours of rigorous training for the next four days in preparation for the bout with Kents Hill of the following Saturday, May sixteenth. But, as usual, it was to no avail. Once again the suffering, struggling team met with slaughter. The score was 14-4.

The tennis team was more successful but definitely more haggard. The players averaged a total of fifty games each, causing their tournament to go into the first of the afternoon.

Well, the tennis team has its victories to make it happy, and, even though the softball players didn't win, they can remember the fun they had. And it really is fun to play a good, clean game and know that you have done your best.
